Supreme Court unseals seven grand jury filings relating to Attorney General Kathleen Kane

HARRISBURG — The Supreme Court has unsealed documents in seven grand jury filings related to Attorney General Kathleen Kane. The documents were unsealed at the request of the supervising judge of the grand jury.

The documents can be found at www.pacourts.us by clicking on the “Cases of Public Interest” tab on the right side of the page. The filings are listed under the Supreme Court heading In Re: The Thirty-Fifth Statewide Investigating Grand Jury.

One of the seven filings, 175 MM 2014, has an attachment containing graphic, objectionable material which is not available on the website. It is available at any of the three Supreme Court Prothonotary offices: in the Pennsylvania Judicial Center in Harrisburg; City Hall in Philadelphia; and the City-County Building in Pittsburgh. Specific addresses and directions can be found on the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania page on the court’s website at www.pacourts.us.

Redactions contained in the filings relate to other grand jury matters solely under the purview of another supervising judge.
