THE SUPERIOR COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA

CHAMBERS OF PRESIDENT JUDGE KATE FORD ELLIOTT
SUITE 1660 / TWO CHATHAM CENTER / PITTSBURGH, PA 15219

To the Citizens of Pennsylvania:

On behalf of the judges and staff of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, I am pleased to present the 2007 Annual Report. The number of new appeal filings in 2007, 7,979, continued this court's reputation as one of the busiest appellate courts in the nation.

The court continues its development of an appellate mediation program in our Eastern District which, along with settling appeals, has also helped target and streamline issues presented to the court for further review. We are now actively assessing whether this program will expand to other districts and to family-related appeals.

With the cooperation of trial courts across the Commonwealth, the court has dramatically reduced record delays and case processing times. This is particularly true with respect to this court's child-centered family fast track appeal program. The fast track program monitors and expedites dependency, custody, adoption and support matters.

During 2007, the court continued to conduct sessions in county seats throughout the state in an effort to provide citizens with greater access to their system of justice. Additionally, in conjunction with these sessions, the judges of the court have participated in numerous judicial outreach and educational programs. We are also pleased that the Pennsylvania Cable Network has continued to broadcast our court en banc sessions.

These broadcasts allow the court to continue its commitment to inform and educate the citizens of Pennsylvania regarding the appellate process.

The elections of 2007, brought three new members to the court, filling important vacant positions. Additionally, three judges, who collectively represented thirty years of judicial experience with this court were retained for another term. The wisdom of the voters of Pennsylvania in this regard has allowed the Superior Court to continue to handle the people's business effectively and efficiently.

Along with judicial staffing changes, we note the retirement of our colleague and friend, the Honorable Justin M. Johnson, following 27 years of service to the Superior Court. His unwavering commitment to excellence, his dedication to this institution, and his friendship truly will be missed.

As President Judge, it is my great privilege to lead this great court and to present this report to the citizens of Pennsylvania.

KATE FORD ELLIOTT
PRESIDENT JUDGE

THE YEAR
In Review

The Court continued its tradition of conducting argument sessions in venues throughout the Commonwealth. In addition to our primary courtrooms in Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Philadelphia, the Court traveled to Scranton, Bellefonte and Wilkes-Barre for sessions. Pennsylvania Cable Network continued to broadcast the court's en banc sessions accompanied by thoughtful commentary provided by respected members of the Bar whose participation greatly enhances these telecasts.

The Court also honored 50-year members of the Pennsylvania Bar Association during en banc sessions in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. The latter session took place at the National Constitution Center.

Judge Robert C. Daniels, former Chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar Association, began his tenure with this Court in April following his nomination by the Governor and confirmation by the Senate. Senior Common Pleas Court Judge Fred P. Anthony of Erie County was appointed to our Court by the Chief Justice in August. Both served until January, 2008.

The 2007 Appellate Courts' Educational Conference was held in June at State College. Professors David Barron of the Harvard Law School and John Harrison of the University of Virginia School of Law presented a program on Executive Power in the Age of Terrorism. Professor Jean Edward Smith of Marshall University gave a presentation on Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Charles Evans Hughes and Judicial Independence. Professor Pam Karlan of Stanford Law School lectured on the United States Supreme Court's 2006 Term.

Also in June, our long-time Reporter, Kathryn Bann, retired after more than 38 years of service to the Court. Robert Levine, a supervising attorney with our Central Legal Staff, was appointed in October as her replacement.

In October, our Court hosted a state-wide seminar on various aspects of safety and security that impact the judiciary. New computer servers were installed and technology upgrades continued to be implemented in an on-going effort to further expedite the appellate process.

As a result of the general election in November, Judge Debra Todd and Judge Seamus McCaffery won seats on the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Attorney Christine Donohue, Attorney Jacqueline Shogan and Judge Cheryl Allen of the Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas won seats on the Superior Court. Judges Corrale Stevens, John Musmanno and Joan Orié Melvin won retention to this Court. Judge Michael Joyce did not seek retention.

In December, the Pennsylvania Sexual Violence Benchbook, written by Judge Jack Panella, was published by the Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape. That same month, Pennsylvania Superior Court Ceremonial Sessions, edited by Judge John Bender, was published by Word Association Publishers.

On December 31, 2007, Judge Justin Johnson retired from the Court after a distinguished judicial career spanning 27 years.

FAMILY FAST TRACK

Program

On July 3, 2000, the Superior Court instituted the Family Fast Track Program in an effort to eliminate delays in the appellate review of cases involving the rights and needs of children. Cases involving adoption, custody/visitation, child support, paternity, dependency and involuntary termination of parental rights are identified from filed docketing statements and are placed into the program. These appeals are then subject to monitoring procedures designed to expedite the filing of the trial court record and the parties' briefs. Once the briefing schedules are completed these appeals are given priority listing before panels and, thereafter, expedited treatment in chambers.

In 2007, a total of 689 appeals were designated for the Family Fast Track Program and 712 appeals were concluded, the highest numbers since the program's inception. On average appeals in this program reached disposition within 233 days, far exceeding the standards set by the American Bar Association. The rights of children are most certainly a priority throughout Pennsylvania's Unified Judicial System. The continued efforts of this Court, as well as the trial court Bench and the Bar, will ensure that appeals involving the rights of children will be thoroughly prepared and reviewed and expeditiously resolved.

In 1895, the Pennsylvania General Assembly established the Superior Court to hear appeals from certain decisions of the courts of common pleas of the Commonwealth. From time to time the legislature has expanded the Court's jurisdiction, and today it decides appeals touching almost every aspect of life and commerce in the State, including family matters, such as child custody, visitation, adoption, divorce, and support; criminal cases; matters concerning wills and estates; property disputes; and those involving damages for breach of contract or personal injury. Judges of the Court are also responsible for hearing applications made by the Attorney General and district attorneys under the Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance Control Act. The Superior Court is often the final arbiter of legal disputes in Pennsylvania. Although the Supreme Court may grant a petition for an appeal from a decision of the Superior Court, in the large majority of cases such petitions are denied. Appeals allowed to the United States Supreme Court are even more infrequent.

The Superior Court was originally composed of seven judges who sat together to hear every case. However, in 1978, the Supreme Court, citing the "exceedingly heavy volume of appeals coming to the Superior Court," exercised its constitutional supervisory powers over Pennsylvania courts to order the Superior Court to begin sitting in panels of three judges. By rule, the Supreme Court provided that each panel would constitute a quorum and speak for the entire Superior Court.

In 1979, the voters approved an amendment to the Pennsylvania Constitution providing that the Superior Court be enlarged permanently. Pursuant to this constitutional change, the General Assembly in 1980 provided for the gubernatorial appointment of eight additional judges. By the start of 1986, all fifteen Superior Court seats had been filled by election.

Under statute, judges gain seniority by length of continuous service on the Court, with elected judges receiving seniority over those serving by appointment. Judges elected or appointed together determine seniority by lot. The president judge is chosen by election of the Court to serve a five-year term. Except for cases in which the Court specially orders consideration by an en banc panel of nine judges, the Court continues to sit in three-judge panels, assisted by senior judges specially appointed by the Supreme Court.

OFFICE OF COURT MEDIATION

The Office of Court Mediation was established to provide alternate means of dispute resolution for litigants in the Superior Court. The goal of the Office is to assist the parties and the Court in resolving cases in the early stages of the appellate process. Early resolution results in: reduced litigation expenses; prompt, predictable, and amicably compromised judgment amounts; and, equitable, mutually satisfactory results that cannot be achieved in the normal course of the appellate process. The Office of Mediation assists the Court in managing its increasing caseload.

The Office of Court Mediation is located in Philadelphia. It is staffed by the Mediator, an attorney with extensive appellate experience, and a paralegal Assistant to the Mediator.
